Al-Maliki Defends Iraqi Rule

PM decries challenges to his government's sovereignty

NEW YORK | Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki walked a fine line Sunday: confronting his American backers over what he sees as violations of Iraq's sovereignty while stressing that his relations are rock solid with the country on whose support he still relies.

"Success is shared," he said in an interview with The Associated Press, referring to his deeply intertwined partnership with President Bush and the U.S. government. "God forbid, failure is also shared."

Al-Maliki

In a half-hour talk conducted in his Manhattan hotel suite, the 57-year-old politician said it is unacceptable that U.S. security contractors would kill Iraqi civilians, a reference to a Sept. 16 shooting incident involving company Blackwater USA that left at least 11 Iraqis dead.

In the country to attend the U.N. General Assembly, al-Maliki is on his first visit to the United States since the recent reports to Congress by Gen. David Petraeus and Ambassador Ryan Crocker gave his 16-month-old government a mixed review. In spite of that, he appeared to be in no mood to brook challenges to his leadership.

A confident tone, evident throughout the interview, reflected how the Iraqi leader seems to be taking a firm stand in defense of his government's achievements, even as criticism in the U.S. and elsewhere mounts. (AP)

LITTLE-KNOWN FACT

Butchering Dr. Seuss Also Is Not Kosher

U.S. District Court Judge James Muirhead in Concord, N.H., reached for Dr. Seuss' "Green Eggs and Ham" for inspiration after receiving a hard-boiled egg in the mail from a prison inmate protesting his diet. "I do not like eggs in the file," Muirhead wrote. "I do not like them in any style. I will not take them fried or boiled. I will not take them poached or broiled. I will not take them soft or scrambled/Despite an argument well-rambled." Inmate Charles Jay Wolff sent the egg in a manila envelope as part of his complaint against state officials. Wolff, 61, says he is an Orthodox Jew and has accused prison officials of refusing to feed him a kosher diet. (AP)

'Take on the Elderly' Seminar Is Effective

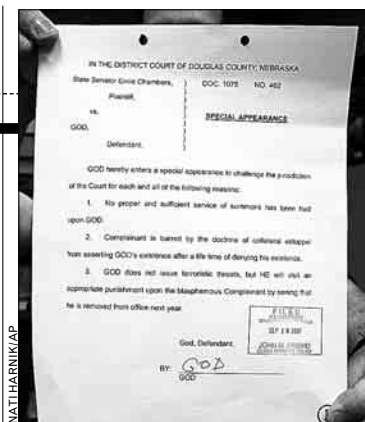

A man accused of snatching another man's false teeth straight from his mouth during a fight in Yorktown, Ind., has been charged with robbery. Robert Henry Stahl, 62, was charged Thursday with felony robbery and battery causing bodily injury, a misdemeanor. If convicted of robbery, he could face two to eight years in prison. Billie Townsend, 56, told police he went to a bar on July 27 to pay Stahl money he owed him, then Stahl asked him to go outside and started punching him repeatedly. During the fight, Stahl allegedly put Townsend in a headlock and removed his false teeth. "He said, 'You ain't getting these back,'" Townsend told police. (AP)

God Weighs Exception To No-Lawyers Rule

It was attorney Erik Perkins, not God himself, who submitted a response last week to a lawsuit filed against the almighty by Nebraska State Sen. Ernie Chambers. "Defendant denies that this or any court has jurisdiction ... over Him any more than the court has jurisdiction over the wind or rain," wrote Perkins. Chambers' suit contends that God made terrorist threats and caused "widespread death, destruction and terrorization." Perkins, a Christian, said of his response on God's behalf: "I'd hate to be that person who sat back and did nothing." (AP)

Fall Peace Conference Takes Shape

U.S. to invite 12 Arab nations to meeting on peace deal with Israel

UNITED NATIONS | The United States will invite 12 Arab nations, including Syria, to President Bush's Mideast peace conference this fall, a senior U.S. official said.

Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice was outlining the expected agenda for the meeting, including the invitation list, at the United Nations on Sunday to representatives of an international coalition trying to resolve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, the official said.

In addition to the Israelis and Palestinians, those to be invited include the diplomatic group known as the Quartet — the United States, the United Nations, the European Union and Russia — and Arab League states studying a broadier peace deal with Israel, the official said.

They are Algeria, Bahrain, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia and Yemen.

They are members of a committee charged with following up an Arab League offer to recognize Israel in exchange for territory. Only two, Egypt and Jordan, have peace deals with Israel and some, notably Syria and Saudi Arabia, remain technically at war with the Jewish state.

Many Arab states have said they see no use for Bush's conference unless it has clear goals and a realistic chance of meeting them. The U.S. official said Rice believed she could allay those fears in her talks with the Quartet and the Arab League members on Sunday.

The official spoke on condition of anonymity because Rice had not yet made her presentation to the Quartet, its new representative to the region, former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, and Arab diplomats. MATTHEW LEE (AP)

Independent voter Natalie Frank says she doesn't trust politicians. "They're more for the big dollar than the individual person."

Independents Key in '08

Polls: Voters without party affiliation favor Democrats in election

WASHINGTON | Michael Brooks is exactly the kind of voter the Republican Party can ill afford to lose. But in a foreboding omen for 2008, it may have already done just that.

The auto parts store worker from St. Charles, Mo., says he used to be a Republican but felt abandoned and is now an independent.

"For some reason or other, they didn't seem to be for the masses anymore," said Brooks. He said he voted for President Bush in 2000, thinking the Republican was "more middle of the road, for the people. Obviously, I was incorrect."

Brooks is not alone. From coast to coast, independent voters tilt tellingly toward Democrats in their opposition to the Iraq war, their displeasure with Bush and their feeling that the country is moving in the wrong direction, according to recent Associated Press-Ipsos polls.

"This is a serious problem" for Republicans, says GOP pollster Neil Newhouse. "We didn't get where we are among independents overnight. The data does suggest that it's going to take us some time to earn those votes back. There is no quick fix."

Independents are not a lock for Democrats. The two major parties are each viewed favorably by only about one-fifth of independents, according to a recent NBC News-Wall Street Journal poll.

As long as the war continues without major troop reductions, Democrats say, they are bullish, for now, about their 2008 prospects.

"Independents are kind of like a weather vane, and the wind is the political environment," said Democratic pollster John Anzalone. "That wind has been going our way for 18 months or two years now, but you just never know when the front will change that." ALAN FRAM (AP)

N.Y.C. Mayor Visits Flight 93 Memorial

Bloomberg presents officials with flag that flew over Ground Zero

PITTSBURGH | New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg visited the Flight 93 crash site before stopping in Pittsburgh on Sunday as part of a fundraising tour for a memorial and museum to commemorate the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

Bloomberg toured the Flight 93 memorial site near Shanksville, where he presented officials with an American flag that had flown above Ground Zero. The flag was then raised at the Flight 93 site, about 65 miles southeast of Pittsburgh.

Bloomberg

Flight 93 was en route from Newark, N.J., to San Francisco on Sept. 11, 2001, when it crashed as passengers apparently tried to rush the cockpit of the hijacked airliner. All 33 passengers, seven crew members and the hijackers died.

"I was so pleased to hear that he wanted to come out and see for himself what this place is," said Christine Fraser, the sister of crash victim Colleen Fraser. (AP)

DO LONDON LIKE A LOCAL

TOTALLY LONDON®

www.visitlondon.com

From fish and chips, Sunday roasts and foods from around the world, your trip to London can be a whole new experience for your taste buds!

Meet three Londoners who are passionate about food and want to share their local secrets with you.

Lisa...

I'm a real social butterfly and my favourite thing to do is to check out the new bars and restaurants in my favourite areas of London. I could probably recommend a restaurant in any part of the city!

For me, eating out doesn't have to be about expensive fine dining, it's the experience that counts. For example, the Oxo Tower Bar and Brasserie are hidden away on the 8th floor of the former headquarters of the stock cube company Oxo. The views from the restaurant are some of the best of London and the food and cocktails are amazing too. I recommend taking a Mojito out to the balcony and watching the sunset over St Paul's Cathedral.

When I want to treat visiting family to something special there's nothing better than afternoon tea. Ask any local, a cup of tea is a moment of indulgence – especially when it's served with cute little sandwiches and delightful pastries.

Sunday morning is definitely the time when I like to relax, you'll often find me in a local coffee shop enjoying a traditional English breakfast while reading the Sunday papers – it's a real Londoners thing to do. My favourites are the cafes at the top of Portobello Road or close by near the boutiques in Westbourne Grove, they are such a great place to sit and people watch!

If I don't make it out for breakfast on a Sunday I'll head to one of London's villages for a typical Sunday lunch. Dulwich village is the perfect setting for a local pub meal with its white picket fences, string of independent shops and even its own Art Gallery there's plenty to stroll around as long as I haven't eaten too much at lunch!

Lorenzo...

Not many people realise this, but you can get every single type of food from around the world in London. We even have the only Michelin starred Thai restaurant in Europe!

I think it's always fun to find restaurants with a difference, for example Imli, an Indian restaurant serves tapas style food which is great anytime of the day. Or how about Hi Sushi Salsa, a fusion of Japanese and Latin American food – you'd be amazed at how well the food goes together!

If you're looking for the latest trends on the London food scene then check out some of the new organic restaurants that are around. For example The Konstant at the Prince Albert sources all its food from greater London and The Acorn is a fully sustainable restaurant and serves some amazing dishes all made of organic produce.

When family and friends from overseas come and stay with me they all ask to go to a traditional pub for food, and with so many gastropubs all over the city you'll never be short of choices. The best thing about pubs is that you can get traditional British food with a good selection of beers and wines without paying a high price. It's a great way to see what the locals spend their time doing.

Lilly Latimer...

I'm part of a big family and we've all got really different tastes in food. Poor mum is always trying to please us all!

The Rainforest Café is my favourite place to eat, it's so much fun seeing the tropical rainstorm while you eat and I always leave some room for the amazing chocolate Volcano cake!!

My brother on the other hand loves Italian food, he likes all the spicy pizza toppings especially. We usually go to La Porchetta in Islington when we're really hungry – they serve the most enormous pizzas! It's a lively place and we often see our school friends there too.

Dad's favourite food is fish and chips, he always gets very excited when we go to the local 'chippie' shop in Kew, he always says it's what real Londoners eat!

I love it when mum has friends over, we go up to the Hummingbird bakery in Notting Hill and pick up cupcakes as a special treat and I get to eat one on the way home!

Mum calls herself a foodie, whatever that is! Whenever she and dad get dolled up and go to a lovely restaurant in the west end, mum likes trying the Michelin starred restaurants, apparently there are 43 in London! Mum says the best thing about London is having so many amazing restaurants on her doorstep!

Little Rock's Legacy Is Unresolved

Race struggles persist on 50th anniversary of integration in Ark.

LITTLE ROCK | Fifty years after federal troops escorted Terrence Roberts and eight fellow black students into an all-white high school, he says the struggles over race and segregation still are unresolved.

"This country has demonstrated over time that it is not prepared to operate as an integrated society," said Roberts, who is a faculty member at Antioch University's psychology program.

He and the other students known as the Little Rock Nine will help the city observe Central High School's 50th anniversary this week.

For three weeks in September 1957, Little Rock was the focus of a showdown over integration as Gov. Orval Faubus blocked nine black students from enrolling at a high school with white students.

Monks Step Up Protest in Myanmar

Ruling military junta faces most serious challenge in decades

YANGON, MYANMAR | About 20,000 protesters led by Buddhist monks and nuns on Sunday mounted the largest anti-government protest in Myanmar since a failed 1988 democratic uprising, shouting support for detained pro-democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi.

At one point, a small crowd of about 400 — about half of them monks — split off from the main demonstration and tried unsuccessfully to approach the home where Suu Kyi is under house arrest. The monks carried a large yellow banner that read: "Love and kindness must win over everything."

The march raised both expectations of possible political change and fear that the military might try to crush the demonstrations with violence, as it did in 1988 when thousands were killed nationwide.

On Saturday, more than 500 monks and sympathizers were allowed past barricades to walk to the house, where Suu Kyi greeted them from her gate in her first public appearance in more than four years. The meeting symbolically linked the current protests to the Nobel laureate's struggle for democracy, which has seen her detained for about 12 of the last 18 years.

But any optimism on the protesters' part was tempered Sunday when government security forces — who had kept a low profile for the past few days — deployed in force to block the new march to Suu Kyi's house. The junta had clearly been trying to avoid provoking the well-disciplined, widely respected monks.

The protests began on Aug. 19 after the government sharply raised fuel prices, increasing the overall cost of living. Arrests and intimidation saw the movement begin to falter until last week, when monks — who have long served as the country's conscience — became the protests' vanguard. (AP)

JERUSALEM, ISRAEL Israel Denies Man Arrested In Lebanon Is an Israeli Spy

Israel said on Sunday that an Israeli man who has been arrested in Lebanon is not a spy, and his father said he had converted to Islam several years ago and immersed himself in Arab culture. Lebanese officials announced the arrest of Daniel Sharon on Saturday after a Lebanese friend of his was questioned in connection with a shooting death. The incident has threatened to inflame tensions between the enemy states. (AP)

Cuba published a photo Sunday of a standing, smiling Fidel Castro looking heavier but still gaunt as he met with Angola's president, the first head of state to see the ailing 81-year-old since June. The picture, which appeared on the front page of the communist party youth newspaper Juventud Rebelde, shows Castro in a track suit. The Cuban leader wears a warm half-smile as he shakes hands with Angolan President Jose Eduardo Dos Santos. It was the first time Castro has been seen standing in months. (AP)

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST Deposed Ivorian Leader Holds Pre-Election Rally

Ivory Coast's deposed leader held a mass rally Sunday, calling on his supporters to put an end to "impostors and dictators." Former President Henri Konan Bedie, who was toppled in a military coup in 1999, is vying for the presidency again in Ivory Coast's upcoming elections, the dates of which have not yet been set. (AP)

Japan's Ruling Party Chooses Moderate as PM

TOKYO | Japan's troubled ruling party chose dovish veteran politician Yasuo Fukuda as its pick for prime minister Sunday, turning to an experienced hand to battle the resurgent opposition in parliament and reverse a steep slide in public support.

Fukuda, the 71-year-old son of a prime minister and a former right-hand man to two premiers, easily won the vote for president of the Liberal Democratic Party, a post that ensures his election as prime minister in parliament on Tuesday.

But Fukuda faces daunting challenges: The upper house of parliament is dominated by the opposition, and sentiment is growing in favor of snap elections that could endanger the LDP's grip on the lower house. (AP)

Ahmadinejad Preps for U.S. Audience

Iranian president says Americans are eager for 'different opinions'

TEHRAN, IRAN | President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said Sunday that the American people are eager for different opinions about the world, and he is looking forward to providing them with "correct and clear information," state media reported.

The hardline Iranian leader left Sunday for New York to address the U.N. General Assembly and speak to students and teachers during a forum at Columbia University.

Tensions are high between Washington and Tehran over U.S. accusations that the Iran government is secretly trying to develop nuclear weapons and helping Shiite militias in Iraq that target U.S.

Ahmadinejad said his visit will give Americans a chance to hear a different voice, the official IRNA news agency reported.

"The United States is a big and important country with a population of 300 million. Due to certain issues, the American people in the past years have been denied correct and clear information about global developments and are eager to hear different opinions," Ahmadinejad was quoted as saying.

Film Scene Troubles Child

Boy fears his acting in rape scene could bring danger to family

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A 12-year-old Afghan boy starring in the upcoming film “The Kite Runner” fears he and his family could be ostracized or even attacked because of a rape scene that he says he reluctantly acted in — a sequence the family wants cut.

Ahmad Khan Mahmidzada plays the role of young Hassan, who is raped by a bully in a pivotal part of the best-selling novel, on which the movie is based. His family says the scene will offend Afghans.

The film’s producers, Bennett Walsh and Rebecca Yeldham, said they were surprised by the father’s comments “about not being comfortable with the difficult scene” and that they “have the utmost concern for the welfare” of the boys who were in the film.

“When we visited with all the made this a priority and followed their specific instructions.” The visit earlier this year came after the scene was filmed in 2006.

The film is scheduled for U.S. release in late November.

2 Italians, 2 Afghans Believed Kidnapped

Missing personnel last seen at police checkpoint in Herat

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Two Italian military personnel were believed to have been kidnapped in western Afghanistan, and police Sunday said they were searching for the pair and their two Afghan staff.

At a meeting at the United Nations, Afghan President Hamid Karzai told participants he had information about where the Italians were and would pass the information to Italian authorities, said U.S. Ambassador Zalmay Khalilzad.

In northeastern Afghanistan, meanwhile, NATO helicopters fired on a group of suspected insurgents in response to a rocket attack. Four Afghans died and 12 were wounded, the alliance said, and officials were investigating whether the dead and wounded were Afghan police or civilians targeted mistakenly.

The two missing Italians, with their Afghan driver and translator, drove through a police checkpoint in the Shindand district of Herat province on Saturday, and they have not had contact with anyone since, said Gen. Ali Khan Hassanzada, chief of police criminal investigations in western Afghanistan. (AP)

Va. Tech Devises Plan for Changes

School will study 200 recommendations for making campus safer

BLACKSBURG, VA. | Virginia Tech has devised a system to prioritize, study and adopt more than 200 recommendations for changes in the wake of the mass shootings on campus in April, the university's board of visitors was told Sunday.

Minnis Ridenour, a senior resource fellow and former executive vice president and chief operating officer, showed board members color-coded charts that will cross-reference recommendations of a panel appointed by Gov. Timothy M. Kaine to look into the killings with those in the school's internal investigations.

Also to be considered are recommendations from federal studies launched after a mentally disturbed student killed 32 people, wounded two dozen and took his own life.

A policy group of many of the university's top officials is meeting several times a week to set priorities on the recommendations and distribute them to committees for review, school spokesman Larry Hincker said.

Steger

Ridenour said the group will act within a month or two to implement items with the highest priority and will give the board quarterly reports on its progress on all of the items.

Member James R. Smith of Roanoke pointed out that the recommendations related to a situation that is still "laden with emotion." "We need to be able to breathe some passion into this process," he said.

Virginia Tech President Charles Steger said the recommendations for change must be considered in conjunction with recent budget constraints imposed by the state.

He noted that Tech has already spent about $8 million not in its budget on recovery from the shootings. SUE LINDSEY (AP)

Cambodia Finds Its Way to Blogosphere

Through the Internet, once-confined nation can speak to world

PHNOM PENH, CAMBODIA | A Cambodian blogger asked recently whether former King Norodom Sihanouk should be considered the country's founding father of blogging.

He received no definitive answer. Cambodian blog watchers say the 84-year-old monarch may not have known he was blogging when he unveiled his Web site, updated daily by his staff since 2002 with his views on national affairs, correspondence with his admirers and news about his film-making hobby.

But it is clear that young, tech-savvy Cambodians are joining Sihanouk in embracing blogs. The trend is changing their lives and their communication with people abroad — even as electricity remains an unreachable dream for most households in this poverty-ridden nation of 14 million.

"This is a kind of cultural revolution now happening here in terms of self-expression," said Norbert Klein, a longtime resident from Germany who is considered the person who introduced e-mail to Cambodia, through a dial-up connection in 1994. "It is completely a new era in Cambodian life."

Cambodians with the skills and the means to blog are discovering a wider world and using the personal online journals to show off their personalities and views about the issues facing their country, from corruption to food safety.

"Blogging transforms the way we communicate and share information," said 25-year-old student blogger Ly Borin.

Cambodia became one of the most isolated countries in the world during the late 1970s, when the communist Khmer Rouge were in power and cut off virtually all links with the outside world as they applied radical policies that led to the deaths of 1.7 million people. The Khmer Rouge were ousted in 1979, but the country is still struggling to rebuild. Fewer than one-third of 1 percent of Cambodians have regular Web access. If the Internet opened a path for news from outside Cambodia, blogging is turning the path into a two-way street.

FAST FORWARD

Is there such a device as a combination cable modem/wireless router? I have separate boxes for each and it's WAY too many wires.

I've seen many combination cable-modem/WiFi router units in stores. Verizon also provides a combo modem/router for Fios customers. Are there any DSL modems that include WiFi? Not sure that I can think of any.

Any idea what will be done with the stock of last-generation iPods? Any chance we may be able to get one at clearance prices? Apple never seems to put anything on sale.

I am kind of surprised not to see any of the old-gen iPods for sale at the online Apple Store. But check around at other retailers — they must have some leftover inventory to dump, so you should be able to find a deal.

I am surprised not to see any of the old iPods for sale at the Apple Store.

Does navigating with a Macbook/Intel limited user account equal a similar PC protection?

No. When using a Mac as a regular user, you're only asked to authorize computer operations that would affect core system files. Because Mac OS X separates OS X itself from applications — and also walls off both the system and apps from your own data and settings — normal applications can usually be installed by dragging their icon to the Applications folder. In Vista, you have to authorize Every. Single. Program. Install. There's no guidance on whether one installer is going to monkey with more of your system than another.

New York pulls out a goal line stand after scoring 21 unanswered

REDSKINS | After 10 quarters of going-nowhere football, the New York Giants finally rediscovered the secret to winning in the NFL: Play defense, take control of third down, make sure Plaxico Burress catches the ball, and make a harrowing goal line stand at the end of the game. A Giants defense that had allowed 80 points in its first two games allowed only 83 yards after halftime and stopped the Washington Redskins on four plays from first-and-goal at the 1 in the final minute to preserve a 24-17 victory Sunday.

New York scored the game’s final 21 points and rallied from a two-touchdown deficit. Burress, who had three drops and no catches in the first half, had five receptions for 86 yards in the second. The ankle injury that caused him to miss two practices last week didn’t seem to affect him on the game-winning score — a 33-yard catch-and-run in which he received the ball in the left flat and put a move on Carlos Rogers before outrunning Sean Taylor to the end zone with 5:32 remaining. The Redskins drove for a chance to tie in the final minutes. A 27-yard punt return by Antwaan Randle El put the ball at New York’s 35 with 2:19 to play. Jason Campbell kept the drive alive with a 15-yard pass to Santana Moss on fourth-and-8, and a 20-yard strike to Randle El put the ball at the 1. But the Redskins couldn’t finish the job. Campbell spiked the ball on first down, even though there seemed to be plenty of time to set up and run a play. Mike Sellers dropped a pass in the flat on second down, but he probably wouldn’t have scored anyway. Then Ladell Betts was stopped on running plays on third and fourth downs. The Giants (1-2) appeared to still be in free fall when they trailed 17-3 at halftime, but they recovered for a victory that keeps them out of sole possession of last place in the NFC East. The Redskins (2-1) were looking to start 3-0 for the second time in three years. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Scoring Summary

Rushing: WASHINGTON: Portis 14-60, Campbell 4-12, Betts 7-9, Moss 1-2, Randle El 1-(-1) NEW YORK: Ward 26-94, Droughns 3-3, Manning 1-(-1). Passing: WASHINGTON: Campbell 16-34-190 NEW YORK: Manning 21-36-232 Receiving: WASHINGTON: Moss 3-82, Portis 6-37, Randle El 2-32 Cooley 3-19, Betts 1-13, Sellers 1-7. NEW YORK: Burress 5-86, Shockey 5-79, Ward 6-26, Toomer 4-24, Moss 1-17. Missed Field Goals: WASHINGTON: Suisham 39 (WL) NEW YORK: None.

→ Best Call: Gibbs and Al Saunders trusted Jason Campbell in the final minutes, and it appeared to payoff. The young QB completed a handful of key throws including a fourth-and-8 completion to Santana Moss. → Worst Call: The Redskins had three plays to tie the game from the 2-yard line, and a Gibbs-coached team couldn’t punch it in. Why were they rushing on fourth down? There was more time on the game clock than on the play clock. → Worst Adjustment: Who would have thought Tom Coughlin would be a better half-time motivator than Gibbs? But the Redskins were completely outplayed in the second half — until the last drive of the game.

C Basically, the Redskins folded, allowing the 0-2 Giants to score 21 unanswered.

TOP DOGS | SUNDAY'S BEST IN THE NFL

1 Nine catches for 205 yards is a great game. For a first half, those stats tie an NFL record. Just ask Eagles WR Kevin Curtis. 2 In any other game, the 29 completions in 48 attempts on 446 yards by Lions QB Jon Kitna should get you a victory, or at least more than 21 points. 3 With 133 yards on 24 carries, Steelers RB Willie Parker was able to put Frank Gore and the 49ers to shame. 4 Dolphins RB Ronnie Brown may have put up 20 fewer yards on the ground. But he also compiled 99 receiving yards and three TDs. 5 The only two TDs the Cardinals saw came from WR Anquan Boldin. (EXPRESS)

Moreno's Late Goal Saves Tie for United Against Fire

Jaime Moreno scored a late goal to give D.C. United a 1-1 tie with the Chicago Fire on Sunday. In the 18th minute, Chicago's Cuauhtemoc Blanco sent a perfect forward pass to Chad Barrett, who split two defenders and beat goal-keeper Troy Perkins with a shot into the lower left corner of the net for a 1-0 lead. Moreno tied the game in the 83rd minute. Playoff-bound D.C. United (15-6-5) was without midfielders Fred, Christian Gomez and Ben Olsen. (AP)

Favre's Record TD Beats San Diego

Green Bay QB throws his 420th touchdown, tying Marino's mark

NFL | Brett Favre's 420th career touchdown pass meant more than just drawing even with Dan Marino.

The 57-yard completion pass to Greg Jennings, with just over two minutes left, tied Marino's all-time NFL record for career TD passes and rallied the Packers past the Chargers on their way to a 31-24 win.

Favre's 38th career fourth-quarter comeback came one series after the Chargers' defense stopped the Packers (3-0) on fourth-and-goal.

It also spoiled a breakout game for Chargers quarterback Philip Rivers, who started 15-for-15 to tie Dan Fouts' franchise record for consecutive completions and drove the Chargers to take the lead in the third quarter.

The Packers found themselves at their own 43 with 2:18 remaining and one timeout left.

After throwing incomplete for tight end Bubba Franks, Favre reared back and threw a slant pass to Jennings, who streaked into the end zone to give the Packers the lead and give Favre yet another piece of history. CHRIS JENKINS (AP)

Nats Bid Adieu to RFK With a Win

Washington beats up on Phillies bullpen in the last game at home

NATIONALS | His club lost a game on the field and lost ground in the standings Sunday, yet Philadelphia Phillies manager Charlie Manuel chose to look on the bright side: At least his top relievers got some rest for the stretch run.

The Washington Nationals, meanwhile, were thrilled to benefit from a bullpen blowup and beat the Phillies 5-3, a perfect send-off for the last major league game at RFK Stadium — and another chance to hurt a club fighting to make the playoffs.

"Definitely, our time is running out," Manuel said. "Today's game was a big one."

Philadelphia entered having won nine of 10 games, but its loss, coupled with New York's 7-6 victory at Florida in 11 innings, dropped the Phillies to 2½ games behind the first-place Mets in the NL East.

For quite some time, the Nationals' season has been about more modest goals, such as trying to play .500 ball each month or trying to avoid a fourth consecutive last-place finish.

On Sunday, the goal was a victory to say goodbye to their fans for this season and to this stadium forever.

The ballpark hosted the Senators from 1962 to 1971, and has been the Nationals' home since they moved from Montreal and brought base-

"All these people didn't show up to every game. Today was a very special day for them, and I could tell. They stuck around for everything," Nationals Manager Manny Acta said.

Rangers Blank Orioles as Young Closes in on 200

ORIOLES | Kevin Millwood pitched seven scoreless innings for his 10th victory, Michael Young moved closer to another 200-hit season and the Texas Rangers beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-0 on Sunday.

Millwood scattered seven hits, struck out five, walked none and was helped by two inning-ending double plays. He struck out the last three batters he faced to end the seventh, and threw 72 pitches for strikes.

The Orioles were held scoreless for the fourth time this season — all in September.

Young was 1-for-4, giving him 195 hits — leaving him with six games to reach 200 hits for the fifth straight season. STEPHEN HAWKINS (AP)

Pea in His Own Pod

will.i.am dishes on his solo album and his overflowing plate

CHAT | Besides being a member of and the main creative force behind the Black Eyed Peas and producing music for stars such as Whitney Houston, Mariah Carey and Michael Jackson, will.i.am is preparing to release his third solo album, "Songs About Girls," along with a new digital application that turns any social-networking site into an online music store. His clothing line is set to debut in the spring, he's releasing his bandmates' solo albums on his will.i.am music group label later this year, and he'll spend the first months of fall visiting more than 20 countries on the Black Eyed Peas World Tour.

How does your sound differ from the Peas'?

Black Eyed Peas is unique because we do all kind of [stuff]. For me on this record, I don't have any collaborations, just one song with Snoop Dogg. But all the other songs it's me singing and rhyming, playing instruments and doing mostly everything.

Did you have something different to say on this record?

HE WORKS ALONE: Black Eyed Peas frontman will.i.am has a thriving solo career.

It's a complete thought, you know? With the Peas, each one of us put our thoughts on the record and they're tangents, from three, four different points of view. This one, it's a complete thought, a journey through break-ups and make-ups, broken hearts and regrets.

Are you finished with the Peas?

No way. The Peas still got a whole lot more they can do. We got a new record coming out in November [2008].

What are you releasing from your will.i.am music group?

The first two releases were Fergie and Macy [Gray], and then my record. Then apl's and Taboo's next, and "Black Einstein," and not the Black Eyed Peas. Oh, and I'm also doing "Madagascar," so I'll be working in the movies. I'm working on my albums. And then the Talib [Kwelis] and the Commons, and the Mariahs and the Whitneys, and the Michael Jacksons. And then I've got to run over there and do the voiceovers for "Madagascar 2." I play a hippo that falls in love with Jada Pinkett's hippo. It's awesome. And then I'm scoring the music for Hans Zimmer for it.

Who are you looking to work with next?

I want to make a project called "Imagine That." It's say, for example, Questlove from the Roots on drums, Herbie Hancock on keyboards, Stevie Wonder on lead vocals and keyboards, Flea from Red Hot Chili Peppers on bass, Prince on guitar. And who else? Michael Jackson on lead vocals, and one girl: Whitney Houston or Aretha Franklin. But, yeah, imagine that. SANDY COHEN (AP)

Marcel Marceau entertained using everything but his voice for 50 years.

A Man of Few Words

The world loses a great performer and an ambassador of quiet

MIME | Marcel Marceau, whose lithe gestures and pliant facial expressions revived the art of mime and brought poetry to silence, died Saturday. He was 84.

Wearing white face paint, soft shoes and a battered hat topped with a red flower, Marceau — notably through his famed personage

Bip — played the entire range of human emotions onstage for more than 50 years, never uttering a word. Offstage, however, he was famously chatty. "Never get a mime talking. He won't stop," he once said.

A French Jew, Marceau escaped deportation during World War II and worked with the French Resistance to protect Jewish children.

His biggest inspiration was Charlie Chaplin. Marceau, in turn, inspired countless young performers — Michael Jackson borrowed his famous "moonwalk" from a Marceau sketch, "Walking Against the Wind."

Marceau performed around the world until late in life, never going out of style. In one of his most poignant and philosophical acts, "Youth, Maturity, Old Age, Death," he wordlessly showed the passing of an entire life in just minutes.

"Do not the most moving moments of our lives find us without words?" he once said.

POOL YOUR POCKET CHANGE: A British newspaper reported Saturday that one of Vincent van Gogh's final landscapes, "The Fields," will be auctioned in New York City in November. The estimated price of the piece is $34 million.

Velvet Revolvers

Plastic People of the Universe still makes revolutionary music

RESISTANCE | When Plastic People of the Universe (PPU) began playing in 1968, it was in the midst of Prague Spring, a time when the communist chokehold on Czechoslovakia's culture was beginning to loosen.

The Western hippie movement — from the music, poetry and fashion — was idealized, and PPU looked especially to the Velvet Underground and Frank Zappa for inspiration, naming the band after a Frank Zappa and the Mothers of Invention song.

PPU was banned from playing in public by the communist government, was arrested multiple times for playing anyway and was the impetus for the writing of Charter 77, which sparked a worldwide human rights movement and eventually brought democracy to Czechoslovakia following the Velvet Revolution in 1989.

But PPU has always maintained that it did not set out to become politically active. "The band was pushed to being political," said bassist Eva Turnova, one of the newer members. "When we spread out, partly because some members were jailed and some defected, there was not much hope that we would ever gather again to play. It's a kind of satisfaction that we can now play freely, which was the idea at the very beginning."

The band reunited in 1997 — 20 years after Charter 77 — and has toured steadily since. PPU now contains three original members and four new ones, and the group's dynamics and performances have changed accordingly.

"Being youngsters, they were a bit more playful using the stage in the way of 'happenings,'" Turnova said. Old PPU shows featured costumes, light shows and set pieces.

While the band's influences remain rooted in the avant-garde and rock music of the 1960s and '70s, the group's collective mind isn't stuck in that era.

"The age difference is not an obstacle, quite the opposite," Turnova continued. "The band is clicking, and I think we managed to introduce a kind of 'democracy.' There is no leader and everybody has a chance to affect the band's conceptual and musical direction."

Old Music, New Tricks

Heavy Trash amps up the '50s on its latest ode to rockabilly

MUSIC | Just when you think rockabilly is museum music, property of fussy '50s re-enactors with fast fingers but not much passion or creativity, Heavy Trash drops its second album, "Going Way Out With Heavy Trash."

Led by the sideburn-wearing, string-bending duo of Jon Spencer and Matt Verta-Ray, the band comes at 1956 with just enough reverence and not a drop more. All the old ingredients are there — slap bass, brittle guitar, vocals seemingly recorded in a gorge — but the results are tougher and looser, suitable for a post-punk world.

Spencer and Verta-Ray manage to repurpose 50-year-old sounds without resorting to kitsch, like the Cramps, or pushing the tempo until the music no longer swings, as so many psychobilly bands do. "Kissy Baby" is built on the blues progression used in practically every rock 'n' roll song before 1960, but even then, in its most hemmed-in moment, Heavy Trash finds its own wild voice.

Better still is "I Want Oblivion," a tune that, with its short, awkward verses and shouted choruses, is part "Surfin' Bird," part teen-angst anthem.

The road may have been paved a half-century ago, but this is an entirely different ride. KENNETH PARTRIDGE (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

Are you Depressed?

Have you been diagnosed with Major Depressive Disorder or Depression?

Have you tried at least one prescription anti-depressant medication that didn't work for you?

If you are between 18 and 65 years of age, and have had a poor response to antidepressant medications in the past, you may qualify to participate in a research study, receive investigational medication and study-related physical exams.

Special Report solves the "My home isn't selling" problem

WASHINGTON METRO – A
"Special Report" explodes what its author exposes as "The myth of slow home sales." In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time.
The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report's procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site

Healthy Adult Volunteers Needed

The National Institute of Mental Health is conducting a psychopharmacology study of mild stress and memory.
Participants will be interviewed and will complete a series of tasks during which physiological functioning will be recorded. Volunteers must be between the ages of 18-50.

Financial compensation will be provided for participation.

Entertainment

SUPER-PEST: The arrival of Batman in Hong Kong this November for filming of the latest Hollywood sequel, "The Dark Knight," has ruffled local politicians, who say the masked hero could disrupt traffic and cause noise pollution.

Sincere Intent to Flatter

Jeffrey Brown's love of a toy spawned his need to satirize it

ROBOTS! "The Transformers" started off as a beloved children's cartoon and toy line, and in his film adaptation, director Michael Bay took the property and turned it into a violent special effects-laden action film that turned it's back on the childish nature of the property.

Cartoonist Jeffrey Brown is bringing back the silly.

Brown, who started his cartooning career with autobiographical books about relationships, takes a stab at one of his favorite childhood toys with his satirical love letter to "The Transformers": his new graphic novel, "The Incredible Change-Bots."

He put himself in the mind-set of the creative team back in the 1980s, and developed a story that doesn't stray all that far from the good versus evil story lines of the cartoon — only makes it more absurd.

"Part of it was flat-out making fun of the Transformers," Brown said. "And there's so much about the cartoon that's silly, how the robots are flying around, but then they transform into a jet. These things in kid logic make perfect sense."

Brown, who will be appearing at the Small Press Expo in Bethesda in mid-October, is quick to clarify that he is paying tribute to something he really loved, while creating something new.

The story reads like a lost episode of the show, complete with action, intrigue and even some romance. He also creates an entirely new set of robotic heroes and villains. The main hero, Big Rig, is an obvious ana-logue of "The Transformers" leader Optimus Prime, though Brown also comes up with some wholly original Change-Bots, like the golf cart named Balls and a set of villains who transform — ummm, incredibly change — from robots into microwave popcorn and microwave soup.

While this book might seem to cater specifically to children of the '80s who grew up with "The Transformers," Brown says that the humor is straightforward with universal appeal, and anyone who's read his previous work will be able to appreciate this one. Brown's first few books, "Clumsy" and "Unlikely," were charming relationship stories that have been described by some as depressing, sad or full of self-pity.

"For me, part of the catharsis is to make fun of myself or make fun of that seriousness or sadness," Brown said. "There are a lot of jokes in those books."

Following his diversion into satire — he's also recently released a superhero spoof called "Big Head" — Brown will incredible-change back into a autobiographical cartoonist with "Little Things," a massive, 350-page tome collecting numerous autobiographical stories that is coming out next year.

Thrills

Rope walker wants to stage the ultimate trick at Niagara Falls

For more than 40 years, visitors to this tourist town have gazed upward to a fiberglass likeness of 19th-century tightrope walker Charles Blondin, occupying not only his fabled wire, but also his place as Niagara Falls' most famous funambulist.

This summer, tourists also have been bending their necks for a flesh-and-blood contemporary. Twice each day, Jay Cochrane has traversed a wire between two 20-story towers set 1,000 feet apart, addressing onlookers with a showman's skills honed over a 50-year career.

"Welcome to Canada!" he announces from above.

By summer's end, Cochrane will have performed 300 "skywalks," as he calls them, a block or so from the water's edge.

But he will hardly be done with Niagara Falls.

Next year, the 63-year-old performer wants to walk a tightrope from the United States into Canada over the brink of the Falls, something no one, not even "The Great Blondin," has ever done.

But he has to get permission first.

Cochrane's requests to walk above Niagara Falls have been rejected in past years, most recently in 1996. Parks officials in the United States and Canada have cited concerns about safety, cost and environmental impact, which are the basis for strict policies against stunting and daredevil acts.

Cochrane argues he is different than the barrel riders and rapids "shooters" — some successful, some not — immortalized in the area's shamelessly kitschy museums.

"I realize what it is, and I am very cautious," Cochrane said. "That's why I've been doing it for 50 years, why I'm still here."

It has been more than 100 years since a tightrope walker has crossed the Niagara River at the falls. Eleven have done it — but all have walked over the gorge below the 180-foot waterfalls, never over the brink, as Cochrane has proposed.

Despite the past rejections,

“He does not have a death wish. He does this every day and is confident ... he is competent.”

WAYNE THOMSON, NIAGARA FALLS

Cochrane is more confident than ever that he is close to getting the go-ahead to attempt the feat. In his corner is former Niagara Falls, Ontario, Mayor Wayne Thomson, who is now a city councillor.

"He certainly does not have a death wish. He does this every day and is confident and has proven ... walking all summer long, that he is competent," Thomson said.

But Mark Thomas, the Niagara region's director of state parks, called it a stunt and added: "We do not want it associated with our parks." CAROLYN THOMPSON (AP)

A foundation hopes to save Hemingway's Idaho writing retreat

Ernest Hemingway's final home in Ketchum, Idaho — with its astonishing array of the author's personal possessions — is perhaps the most enigmatic, and certainly the least visited, of the houses the Nobel Prize winner once owned.

As a result, it's mostly remembered as the place where the writer killed himself in the main entryway with a shotgun in 1961.

Taylor Paslay is working to change that image with research that could end up being the foundation for protecting the aging 1950s house that neighbors in nearby modern mansions have suggested be picked up and carted off.

"There's a lot of historical value in the house," said Paslay, 36, whose combination of handyman skills and an English literature degree

Ernest Hemingway's home in Ketchum, Idaho, is owned by the Nature Conservancy.

makes him an ideal caretaker of the house. "It definitely has a value to the community, mostly due to the fact that Hemingway loved the area and came back here and decided to buy a home."

Paslay, the Hemingway Preserve Manager, ended up in the converted basement of Hemingway's final home as part of an evolving plan by his employer, the Nature Conservancy, which owns the house.

The organization is set up to preserve wild places, not historical buildings. Before hiring Paslay, it tried to turn the house over to the Hemingway Foundation. The plan was to open the house for public tours with the idea that paying tourists would help offset the $50,000 in annual upkeep.

But the plan collapsed in 2005 amid threatened lawsuits from neighbors concerned about traffic.

Neighbors even offered to buy the house for market value so it could be moved to another site.

After the Hemingway Foundation disbanded this summer, the conservancy embarked on its current plan of using the house to draw in literary donors eager to see the inside of Hemingway's home, and who might then be enticed not only to pay for preservation of the home, but also for preserving wild places in honor of Hemingway the outdoorsman.

"What we're trying to do is make a connection with people who come in with an interest in this literary giant, and we introduce them to the man who loved the land, this great sportsman who spent 30-some years coming to Idaho," said Jan Peppler, director of philanthropy for the Nature Conservancy.

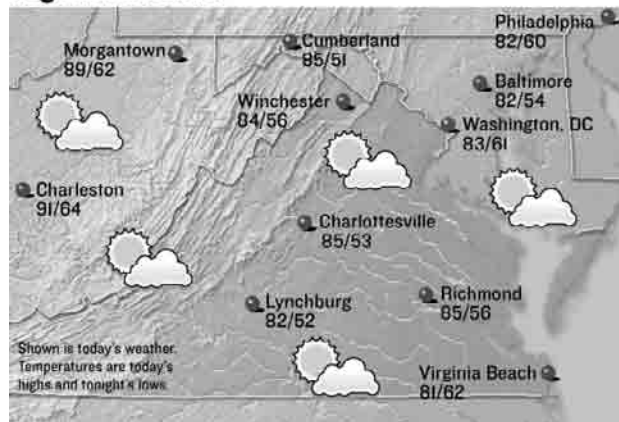

In theory, the Nature Conservancy could put the house on the market and collect the $5 million to $10 million local real estate agents say the land is worth. Peppler said the house will never be put up for sale.

"There's a lot of trust in the stewardship of the Nature Conservancy," said Sharon Ahern, public relations manager for the Sun Valley/Ketchum Chamber & Visitors Bureau. "So, I guess I don't see that as an issue." KEITH RIDLER (AP)

Work That Long Skirt

Put away the short skirts; try flowy frocks

The fashion pendulum is swinging to extremes these days. Pants, which were super-skinny just this summer, are flaring out to sail-like widths this fall. Tent-like trapeze dresses are giving way to close-cut pencil skirts. And now — most dramatically — hemlines are dropping.

One of the biggest themes that emerged at New York Fashion Week, which displayed styles for next spring, is much longer dresses and skirts, many extending to midcalf or even the ankles. Badgley Mischka and Bill Blass presented long dresses and skirts. Michael Kors, Donna Karan, Peter Som, Nanette Lepore and Tracy Reese also showed longer pieces, many of which are flowing dresses meant to be worn during the day.

Designers — who pooh-pooh the old stock-market adage that falling hemlines presage a falling market — say it's only natural for the fashion pendulum to swing toward a new shape.

Indeed, skirts had gotten so short they couldn't really get any higher. "When hemlines have gone as far as they can in one direction, all they can do is go in the other direction," says Valerie Steele, director of the Museum at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York.

Of course, designers are showing skirts in less extreme lengths, too, aiming to appeal to a range of customers. "Designers do not dictate length anymore as they once did," says Carolina Herrera, who is maintaining skirts of several lengths in her collection.

BCBG showed some short skirts this season — even though those skirts' overall length was longer, hitting slightly below the knee.

Designers say today's longer styles are more fitted around the torso and more revealing, using softer fabrics that display women's curves. The pieces are often sleeveless, so they show off the arms.

Mark Badgley, co-designer of Badgley Mischka, says the long day dresses he and partner James Mischka created "feel different and new — the proportion got so short for such a long time." Tracy Reese showed ankle-length silk slip dresses that are designed to be casual or for office wear, with a cardigan thrown over. And Nanette Lepore is showing culotte dresses and skirts that end at the midcalf. The new length "feels glamorous," Lepore says.

One drawback: These dresses can sometimes cost more, due to the amount of fabric used. Isabel Toledo, creative director of Anne Klein, who is doing some Frida Kahlo-inspired bohemian dresses for spring, estimates that she uses 5 yards of fabric for ankle-length dresses — about double the amount she uses for skirts that end at the knee or higher. A long dress could retail for about 20 percent more than a short one in the same fabric, she believes.

Another disadvantage: the possibility of warm weather. "In spring, I'm ready to wear something short — I like something that shows my legs," says Kara Aubuchon, 29, a Boston law student, who adds that she associates ankle-length dresses with "tripping."

Still, some are eager for longer lengths. "I'm tired of seeing people's behinds," says Marianne Soohoo, 34, a Manhattan attorney. "Covering up is sometimes good." CHERYL LU-LIEN TAN (WALL STREET JOURNAL)

This Nanette Lepore model is peeved that she's wearing such a cute dress.

The TV Column

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday to take questions about which shows to watch and which to skip this fall.

I think “30 Rock” is the funniest show on TV in a long, long time. Didn't Alec Baldwin want to quit the show, but NBC wouldn't release him? Will he still be on it, and, if so, is it against his will? He went through those motions when he was trying to look saintly to undo the PR damage caused by the release of that tape in which he was verbally abusing his daughter. He said he was going to quit the show to devote himself 24/7 to his daughter. Yeah, right. Anyway, once he settled down, he stopped saying that.

Do you think “Bionic Woman” has a serious chance? The commercials make it sound good, but as the old saying goes, it's about the sizzle and not the steak.

In theory, yes, because it's a much-loved franchise and you know how devoted scary sci-fi people are to their franchises. But the recasting, new show runners, etc. is usually not great news. And, of course, the cynical Isaiah Washington stunt casting smells of desperation, doesn't it?

One of my co-workers DVRs “Grey's Anatomy” and watches it Friday. She has asked us to keep Fridays spoiler-free and save our post-show analysis until Monday. One of our other co-workers said that you said in your chat last week that in today's world we can't tolerate spoiler-free requests.

Robert Hein & Deborah Fenwick

Little did I know that my neighbors' pestering me to go to HealthFair would save me from having a stroke. Ray, who lives next door, had gone to HealthFair in December, where they found a large aneurysm on his aorta. With urgent surgery, the HealthFair test saved Ray's life. After that, every time I saw Barbara, Ray's wife, she asked me when I was going to HealthFair to get tested. I finally agreed to go, and I am very glad I did. The HealthFair technician found that I had a very clogged carotid artery and told me to see my doctor immediately. I was shocked. I always have regular and vigorous physical exams. I'm 63 years old, slim built, don't smoke, eat a fairly low-fat diet, and exercise regularly. I ride my bike 25 miles twice a week, play softball four days a week, and play golf. I have normal blood pressure, normal cholesterol, and a healthy heart. Within a week of the HealthFair screening, I was in the hospital having surgery on the clogged artery. Many of the hospital staff were surprised by my condition considering my otherwise good health. My surgeon, Dr. Earl Stewart, told me the artery was over 80% blocked and the plaque unstable. He was surprised that I hadn't already had a stroke, and was sure I would've had one soon without surgery. Within a week of surgery, I was up and able to resume my normal activities. HealthFair provided a miracle for me and my neighbor, Ray. I think everyone should have the screening. It's the best money I have ever spent. Sincerely, Robert Hein.

Joint Commission What this means for you.

Accreditation by the Joint Commission is the Gold Standard in health care. The Joint Commission is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to raising the level of safety and quality of care in all health care settings. Since 1951, the Joint Commission accreditation has been recognized within health care as a symbol of quality. HealthFair is accredited just as the hospitals in your community are accredited.

Accreditation means that HealthFair has volunteered to undergo a challenging, comprehensive evaluation.

Whenever and wherever you receive health care, look for the Joint Commission's gold seal of approval.

HEART DISEASE PREVENTION PACKAGE

ECHOCARDIOGRAM
ULTRASOUND TEST

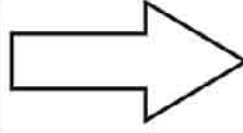

Echocardiogram is a video ultrasound of the heart. It may detect enlargement of the heart, valve abnormalities, blood clots and tumors.

ELECTROCARDIOGRAM
(EKG) TEST

EKG may detect ischemia, silent heart attack and atrial fibrillation. EKG provides a picture of the electrical activity of the heart.

HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES (ASI) TEST

Hardened arteries cause the heart to work harder, which leads to vascular disease. ASI test shows the degree of hardening of the arteries.

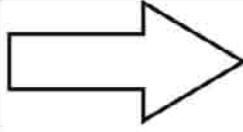

ALL 3 TESTS

These cardiac tests are painless and non-invasive. The combined cost is more than $1,300 at most hospitals.

STROKE & ANEURYSM PREVENTION PACKAGE

STROKE/CAROTID ARTERY
ULTRASOUND TEST

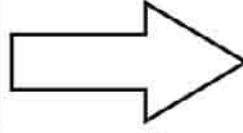

Many strokes are associated with blockages in the carotid arteries that may be detected with an ultrasound.

ABDOMINAL AORTIC
ANEURYSM TEST
(4-HOUR FAST REQUIRED)

Abdominal aortic aneurysms form as a result of a weakness in the lining of the artery wall that may be detected with an ultrasound.

BLOOD CIRCULATION
(ARTERIOSCLEROSIS) TEST

Many adults have leg cramps due to poor circulation. ABI screening measures extremities for peripheral arterial disease.

ALL 3 TESTS

These vascular tests are painless and non-invasive. The combined cost is more than $1,000 at most hospitals.
